

MILITANT LADS FACE "ONE JOHN"

Mayor and Others Complain of a Race Battle in West End.

TOOK THEIR MEDICINE CALMLY

Youngsters Who Were Victors Felt Fully Repaid for Inconvenience.

Backward in panoramic flight fitted the pages in Time's memorandum book until well nigh three score years had rolled away, and before the vision of Justice John J. Crutchfield, the imitatively humorous, the sympathetically serious, and the genial, jovial, just man, there appeared yesterday morning scenes of terrible battles, of battered and bruised faces and of victorious countenances of boys. To his ears, from afar off, came the sound of the cheer of the triumphant crowd as it gathered on its corner and issued defiance to the defeated "gang."

It was caused by a rock battle case that was brought to his attention. Eighteen boys from the Park Avenue gang and the Cary Street "Cats" came to the counter behind which the One John sits. They were charged with throwing rocks. It was a battle royal—one of these battles that the young American delights to engage in, and in which true courage is shown.

But the battle was too fierce for modern times. The rocks were thrown with too much speed and the aim of some of the lads was not the very best. For the sake of the community they were hauled into court.

And Mayor McCarthy was a witness against them. In a splendidly narrow-robed, severely serious manner, he said that they were thrown. Other good citizens complained, and there was nothing for the justice to do but convict.

Not a Story Was Told.

Honesty is characteristic of the boy who engages in a rock battle. Generally he is not ashamed of the fight, provided his gang were the victors. And there were few stories told yesterday morning. The boys admitted their guilt, and, of course, promised not to do so any more.

"Boys, I'm sorry for you. I'm sorry you got caught, and I'm sorry for your parents, for they are the ones that will have to pay the money. But I've got to fine you, and I'm going to fine every one alike. Park Avenue boys and Cary Street boys each shall contribute $2.50. And I'm awfully sorry, but this is a lesson, and I'm not to raise so much trouble the next time," said the One John, in passing upon the case.

Fathers and mothers were there, and they paid—those who had the money. But in the crowd were mothers who did not have enough money with which to pay. Several of the boys went back to the bench—none were placed in the pen—for Crutchfield would not stand for that.

And after court, when four or five could not raise the amount at once, they were paroled until next Saturday, when they are to come and contribute their amount. Each one will have to pay. There is no hope of having the fine upon any one remitted.

One lad with a bright face, who works for a telegraph company, was allowed to go to his office and get the fine. Some said he wouldn't return, but within twenty minutes he was back with the fine.

"Dinged if I ain't mad about all these boys getting fined like this," said Mr. Gibbons.

"I've been there, but the policeman couldn't catch me. I'm sorry, too, but all of them got it in the neck for this one time. Maybe they were a little too bad," echoed Mr. White, who of short frame and amiable disposition.

"I'm sorry it happened," was all that the justice said as he reclined upon a lounge in his office.

Why Did He Beat Blanche?

William Dabney drove a horse that had a sore back. Mr. Emmett Taylor caught William, and Justice John made his contribution $10.

William C. Wallman was charged with stealing a clock, and his wife was the complainant. He was dismissed, it being shown that he had not been guilty of prosecution.

George Lewis will have until Tuesday to fix up an explanation to the charge of beating one Blanche Taylor.

William Slaughter was drunk and was dismissed, and Walter Mackey got thirty days for being disorderly and not coming to court when he was called.

John Evans didn't appear when he was called a few days ago, and yesterday contributed $5 that he didn't have.

Davis—Connelly.

Mr. J. T. Davis was married Friday night to Miss Flossie A. Connelly, of No. 45 North Twenty-third Street, brother of Mr. Davis, of Caroline county, a brother of the groom, performed the ceremony. The nuptials were celebrated at the home of the bride.

CASTOR OIL MADE MUMIES

Egyptian Embalmers Used Familiar Drug in Their Work.

And now, after elaborate experiments, it is declared that the embalmers of the ancient Egyptians are nothing more nor less than the castor oil of commerce.

Instead of some intricate and involved process, the "seventy days in natron" was followed by the injection of castor oil. Mr. J. H. Richardson, secretary of the Louvre Museum, has established this fact beyond a doubt.

Many investigators have vainly sought to fathom the mystery of the preparation of the preserving substance, but they have gone about their work with the idea that complicated formulae were to be deduced, and have defeated their own ends through elaborateness of research.

SHORT DAY'S WORK IN HUSTINGS COURT

Jeff Davis Acquired of Charge of Perjury Yesterday.

The business of the Hustings Court did not take up all of the time of Judge Witt yesterday. There was a short session of the court. Several minor cases were disposed of by the judge without the help of the jury.

Jefferson Davis, a colored individual who had been indicted for swearing falsely in the Police Court, was acquitted of the charge of perjury.

The deputy sergeants were kept busy yesterday serving the summons sent out for grand jury witnesses by Commonwealth's Attorney Richardson. All the grand jury to-morrow know or are supposed to know something about the alleged election frauds. Fifteen of them are cited to appear before the grand jury at 11 o'clock. Mr. Richardson refused to indicate the character of the testimony he expects these witnesses to give, but that he thinks they will entitle the jury to a considerable decree was plain to the reporter's question when the attorney replied without words and only with that knowing smile of his. It is believed that some, maybe all of these witnesses, will be able to give a few points to-morrow as to how and by what means certain voters enticed the State treasury by an unexpected prompt payment of poll-taxes.

GAYNOR AND GREENE HAVE LOST THEIR CASE

Believed That They Have Reached the Limit of Their Ability to Fight.

(By Associated Press.) MONTREAL, QUE., September 23.—A decision against Colonel J. F. Gaynor and Captain B. D. Greene, the American contractors, wanted in the United States on charges of defrauding the government, was handed down by Judge Outimet today in the Court of King's Bench. It is the general belief among legal men that Greene and Gaynor have reached the limit of their resources in fighting against extradition. The defense still has two weeks in which to begin further proceedings to act as a stay. The decision given to-day was on a writ of habeas corpus, based upon the contention that Judge La Fontaine, the commissioner who held them for extradition, had authority to act in the case.

Judge Outimet's decision, quashing the writ of habeas corpus, upholds the original order for extradition issued by Judge La Fontaine.

Donald MacMaster, acting on behalf of the United States authorities, has notified Judge La Fontaine to make every preparation for extradition.

MARKET ON A BOAT.

Buyers Come to Inspect Goods and Haul Them Away.

A wholesale fruit and produce market on a boat is one of the sights to be found along the river front these days. At least two such boats come up regularly every day to a wharf half-way between the Virginia and Calloway bridges on the Delaware River. They are flat boats or scows, and bring the stuff from Philadelphia, N. J., about 35 miles away.

Each boat is covered with a neat awning to keep the sun from its cargo, which is piled high, basket upon basket, in spaces in between for the buyers to walk. The stuff is shipped by the farmers and sold on commission by the shipper. The cost ranges from 10 cents for the best to 25 cents for the poorest. Whatever is not disposed of before it is time for the boat to return is taken to the storehouse of the shipping agent, who happens also to be in the commission business. As the boat is loaded and quite rapidly. The buyers are retailers and bring their wagons down with them to haul the goods away. The boats can carry 2500 baskets, each five-eighths of a bushel.

George Dunning Fatally Injured At Whaleyville.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) SUFPOLE, VA., September 23.—George Dunning, a brakeman on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, was killed last evening at Whaleyville, Va. A freight train was making a sidetrack when it came to a crossing and struck a boat. Dunning was thrown between two cars and crushed. Death was almost instantaneous.
